Antony Tudor was President of the First Zen Institute of America from 1964 until his death in 1987. Tudor was also head of the ballet section at the Juilliard School at the same time that Martha Graham was head of Juilliard's modern dance section. Although less well known than Martha Graham, He was considered one of the greatest choreographers of the 20th century, having choreographed more than 40 ballets, of which half a dozen were considered absolute masterpieces. We will screen excerpts from Undertow, Little Improvisations, Continuo and Judgment of Paris, done at the studios of the Juilliard School, as well as a complete performance of Lilac Garden by the American Ballet Theater. Also included is an extended sequence of interviews with dancers who worked with Tudor interspersed with brief sequences from Tudor Classics such as Pillar of Fire, Dark Elegies and Kinderscenen.
